

Conductor
Costume Designer
Greensman
Producer
Foley Artist
Screenwriter
Location Manager
Composer
Art Director
Executive Producer

They adapt existing works for production into a movie, or create a new screenplay to be filmed

Person who is in charge of and oversees the artists and craftspeople who build the movie sets.

Musicians whose music appears in a movie's score. Most films have at least one original song written expressly for the score.

The person who directs the orchestra's performance of the film's score.

Person who is directly responsible for designing the costumes in a film.

They are responsible for the overall production of a film, but are not directly involved in any of the technical aspects. Normally they will handle the business and legal issues relating to filmmaking.

People create sound effects. They use a variety of objects to create (for example) the sounds of footsteps and other incidental noises in a film.

They provide the foliage and other greenery used as backgrounds on sets.

The people who are responsible for all aspects of filming while on location, including making arrangements with authorities for permission to shoot.

They are in charge of a movie's production in all matters, except for the creative efforts of the Director. They are also responsible for raising funds, hiring key personnel, and arranging for distribution.