Culture and Traditions
Across the Pond

MIAMI
TRANSCRIPT

Number 10: Little Havana.
It is also known as the Latin Quarter. This area is the home of the large Cuban community. Calle Ocho is the main road of the neighborhood. In March, you can visit the biggest street party in the United States.

Number nine: Key Biscayne.
On the island itself, don't miss visiting Crandon Park, which is considered the best beach for families in South Florida.

Number eight: Seaquarium.
This is the oldest oceanarium in the United States and it was founded during the 50s. The park offers several exhibits including manatees, a tropical reef and a shark aquarium.

Number seven: The Viscaya Estate in Coral Gables.
This European style mansion was built in the beginning of the 20th century and is operating today as a museum.

Number six: Lincoln Road.
This is the ideal place to go shopping. One of the most popular roads in South Beach. It is similar to the 5th Avenue in New York or Rodeo Drive in Los Angeles.

Number five: Coconut Grove.
This great neighborhood is located just south of downtown Miami. This is considered to be the center of Arts in Miami and it's packed with museums such as the Miami Science Museum.

Number four: Jungle Island.
In this interactive zoo you can see ligers, which is a cross between a lion and a tiger.

Number three: Surfside.
If you plan a sea and sun vacation in Miami Beach, then this area might be the one for you. Here you can find a big food area as well as a long and beautiful beach facing the Atlantic Ocean.

Number two: beaches. Of course, Miami has a lot of great beaches with white sand, great water and all sorts of attractions, from Halouver in the north all the way down to South Beach.

Number one: Ocean Drive.
Ocean Drive is the heart of the Art Deco District. Here you can see more than 800 Art Deco buildings, which are decorated with neon lights at night. This area is full of life.